performances and interaction. Smti Niharika Bhatt also dived along with the participants, encouraging divers to explore the underwater world and also to protect the fragile ecosystem.

Women's Diving Day was celebrated at Nemo Reef, Swaraj Dweep today with great enthusiasm. The event was organized by Andaman Tourism Department in collaboration with PADI, SSI and local diving centers. Fifteen divers including women divers led the marine clean-up drive and highlighted marine conservation and contribution of women. The event concluded successfully with the celebration of marine conservation and community engagement.

To ensure the smooth conduct of the event, the partnering Dive Associations managed all logistics, including transportation of diving equipment, setting up the site, and providing changing facilities. This initiative underscored the Department's strong focus on promoting Adventure Tourism, empowering women in niche sectors like scuba diving, and protecting the region's rich marine biodiversity. The participants enjoyed a memorable underwater experience. Boat services to North Bay were provided from the Water Sports Complex, ensuring timely access for all attendees.

The event concluded with the Department expressing heartfelt thanks to all participants, dive instructors, partnering associations, and volunteers for their efforts in successfully organizing and making the event a grand celebration of women. This move by the Tourism Department will prove to be a milestone for the dive industry, a press release received from Directorate of IP&T said.

development. They commended the AH&VS Department for its efforts in organizing the training, emphasizing its potential to empower local farmers. A total of 25 farmers participated in the program, which was conducted by the Senior Veterinary Officer (SVO) of Animal Husbandry and the SVO of the Animal Husbandry Training Institute (AHTI), supported by the Department's staff.

The training session focused on equipping farmers with practical knowledge about goat farming techniques and the benefits of Government welfare schemes. Participants were educated on best practices for goat rearing, including feeding, housing, and health management, to ensure optimal productivity and sustainability. The program highlighted how goat farming can serve as a viable income source and contribute to nutritional security through access to protein-rich food. Training materials on goat farming and details of relevant government schemes were distributed to all participants, along with refreshments to facilitate engagement.

The initiative underscores the AH&VS Department's commitment to promoting animal husbandry activities in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands. By fostering awareness and providing technical support, the Department aims to empower rural farmers, particularly women, to achieve financial independence and improved livelihoods. The active participation of farmers and PRI members reflects the community's enthusiasm for adopting sustainable farming practices. The Department plans to continue such training programs across other panchayats, aligning with the Andaman and Nicobar Administration's vision of enhancing rural economies through animal husbandry activities, a press release received Directorate of AH&VS said.
