New Delhi, June 29 India has achieved a remarkable milestone in social security, expanding coverage from 19 percent in 2015 to 64.3 percent in 2025, bringing over 94 crore people under at least one social protection benefit. This unprecedented increase over a decade has been acknowledged by the International Labour Organization (ILO) on its ILOSTAT database. Social security, as defined by the ILO, ensures access to healthcare and income security during times of old age, sickness, unemployment, disability, maternity, work injury, or loss of a breadwinner. India's comprehensive system includes social insurance, welfare payments, and in-kind benefits like food and shelter security. Labour and Employment Minister, Dr Mansukh Mandaviya has said that under the leadership of Prime Minister, Shri Narendra Modi, India has witnessed a historic surge in social protection coverage. In a social media post, Dr Mandaviya expressed gratitude to DG, International Labour Organisation, Mr. Gilbert HOUNGBO, for acknowledging and appreciating India's transformative journey in building a robust and inclusive social security net. Mr HOUNGBO has said that India's social security coverage has increased from nearly 25 per cent in 2019 to 64 per cent in 2025. (Source : newsonair.gov.in)

Government issues model rules for (Contd. from page 1) tree-based farming systems. By promoting domestic timber production through agroforestry, the approach seeks to close the demand-supply gap, support wood-based industries with locally sourced raw materials and boost exports. The State Level Committee established under the Wood-Based Industries (Establishment and Regulation) Guidelines, 2016 will also be responsible for implementing these model rules. Its role will be to guide the States and Union Territories on promoting agroforestry and enhancing timber production from farmlands by easing regulations related to tree harvesting and timber transportation, particularly for commercially valuable species. The committee will empanel agencies for verifying applications for felling of trees from agricultural lands. As per the model rules, applicants are required to register their plantations on the National Timber Management System (NTMS) portal, which is being developed. This involves submitting basic plantation data including, land ownership information, location of the farm with KML file, species, plantation period etc. The applicants can periodically update the plantation information and upload geotagged photos of the plantation to ensure traceability. Applicants wishing to harvest trees from registered plantations can apply online through the National Timber Management System, providing specific details of the trees intended for felling. Verifying agencies will carry out site inspections and based on their verification reports, tree felling permits will be issued for agricultural lands. The Divisional Forest Officers will oversee the performance of these agencies through periodic supervision and monitoring. The Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change have requested States and UTs to examine the model rules and consider their adoption in order to enhance the ease of doing business in agroforestry and incentivize farmers to integrate trees into their farming systems without facing undue procedural hurdles.
