Neurotrophin peptidomimetic drugs offer promise for treating neurodegenerative disorders

New Delhi, May 20 (PIB)

Peptidomimetic drugs - or synthetic molecules that mimic the structure of natural proteins can be repurposed to provide an effective therapeutic strategy to treat neurodegenerative diseases (NDs) by promoting neuronal growth and survival.

Neurodegenerative diseases (NDs) have been a major global health challenge. While neurotrophins, proteins crucial for neuronal survival and function, have shown promise as potential treatments, their instability and rapid degradation have hindered their therapeutic application.

Neurotrophin peptidomimetics are developed to target specific biological functions and can be valuable tools in drug discovery, especially when natural peptides have limitations like poor oral bioavailability or susceptibility to degradation.

One of the significant advantages of peptidomimetics is their improved stability and bioavailability compared to endogenous neurotrophins. This means they can be delivered more effectively to the brain and maintain their therapeutic activity for a longer duration. Additionally, peptidomimetics can be designed to be more specific to their target receptors, reducing the risk of side effects.

Fig: This illustration highlights that neurotrophin peptidomimetics address key limitations of endogenous neurotrophins, offering enhanced stability, improved brain permeability, and lower immunogenicity, making them promising candidates for treating neurodegenerative diseases.

A team of scientists at the Indian Association for the Cultivation of Science (IASST), an autonomous institute of the Department of Science and Technology (DST), has been exploring peptidomimetics, synthetic compounds designed to mimic neurotrophins, as a potential solution to these limitations.

Led by Prof. Ashis K. Mukherjee, the IASST researchers have conducted extensive studies on neurotrophin peptidomimetics. Their research, published in the Journal Drug Discovery Today focused understanding the signaling pathways involved in neuronal growth and survival, the potential pharmacological targets of peptidomimetics, and their therapeutic applications for NDs.

The researchers have highlighted the potential of peptidomimetics to treat NDs by promoting neuronal growth and survival. They have also explored the possibility of repurposing existing peptidomimetic drugs for other diseases, such as cancer, and the potential for developing new drug prototypes based on neurotrophins mimetics.

As research progresses, the hope is that peptidomimetics could become a key therapeutic strategy, offering new hope for managing and treating neurodegenerative disorders for future generations.

Mass deworming of bovine in ...

Deworming the Bovine prior to vaccination leads to effective immunity and thereby, the efficiency of vaccine is optimum. On the other hand, vaccination can be a stress on the animal and if the animal is already fighting parasites, the stress gets exacerbated.

As an endeavor to bolster the overall health of bovines, a mass deworming drive is being organized by the Department of Animal Husbandry and Veterinary Services through all the Veterinary Institutions of Sri Vijaya Puram to deworm not only the bovines but also other livestock and poultry. The cattle owners, other livestock owners and poultry owners have been requested to get their livestock dewormed. The PRIs and Municipal Ward Councilors, Ward Members have been requested to disseminate the information for the benefit of the farmers, a press release from Deptt. of AH&VS said.
