SECI Floats Tender for Solar Projects in Andaman and Nicobar

Tender Details: The Solar Energy Corporation of India (SECI) has released a tender for the development of a 100 MW solar power project integrated with a 50 MW battery energy storage system (BESS) in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands. This project is part of India's strategy to promote renewable energy in isolated regions and reduce dependence on diesel-based power generation.

Project Location: The selected project will be developed in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands. This remote island territory, currently dependent on fossil fuels, aims to transition to a greener energy mix and improve power supply reliability with this solar-plus-storage project.

Battery Storage to Enhance Reliability: The 50 MW BESS component is vital to ensuring a stable power supply, as it will store excess energy produced during the day for use at night or during cloudy conditions. This addresses the challenge of intermittent energy production inherent in solar power systems.

Hybrid Solar-Battery Setup: The hybrid nature of the project aims to integrate renewable energy with advanced storage technologies. By combining solar generation with BESS, the project is expected to provide uninterrupted power to the islanders, reducing the need for backup diesel generators.

Bidder Requirements: SECI has set specific eligibility criteria for bidders, including a track record of developing solar projects and experience with battery storage systems. The tender invites participation from both domestic and international companies, aligning with India's goal to attract foreign investment in the renewable sector.

Environmental and Economic Benefits: This solar project is expected to significantly reduce the
